

Pesticide/Herbicide Certification

Description – More than 15 million acres of land in the U. S. are presently in use as right-of-ways for electric power lines, telephone lines, highways, railroads, pipelines, navigation channels, airport runway approaches, drainage and flood control canals, spillways, levees, and communications structures. All of these require periodic vegetation management in order to assure their continued efficient and safe use. This course will teach participants to safely, efficiently and effectively maintain right-of-ways, utility substations, drainage ways, other right-of-way facilities so that vegetation does not interfere with their intended use.
